Making Short-Term Buying Affordable

Buying rarely used items can be costly and impractical, especially for those on a tight budget. The challenge in making this app was to develop it around the center needs of these individuals which include students, young individuals, entrepreneurs, etc. Many rental platforms focus on either very niche markets or lack the range.

Another issue renters face is the lack of a reliable and safe platform to list items directly. If owners and renters are hesitant to list items then few items will be unable to create a platform.

Traditional rental apps do not offer the affordability and flexibility younger users require. They often overlook the importance of a secure and simple transaction process.
